Southwest TVET Institute — The Conspectus

The Southwest Technical Vocational Education and Training (STVET) Institute was established in April 2011 (officially launched in March 2012) with the merger of three Vocational Training Centres; Black River, Junction and Newport. The amalgamation resulted in each Centre being operated as a campus of the newly formed Institute and contributing to the realization of Jamaica's goals for Vision 2030. The unified approach to the governance and management of the Institute creates a unique brand known for its effectiveness in serving stakeholders in the region. STVET Institute has seen significant growth in all areas; collectively the enrolment targets have skyrocketed from approximately 300 to over 2000 annually. The institute offers a menu of approximately sixty programmes ranging from Levels 1 to 4 of which most are accredited by the National Council on Technical and Vocational Education and Training (NCTVET).

In addition to the three campuses, namely: Newport, Black River (BRC) and Derrick Rochester (DRC) - formerly Junction; the Institute offers some of its training programmes at off-site locations to provide ease of access as well as the best possible resources to current and potential trainees. The off-site locations that are currently being utilized include:

- Church Teacher's College
- Vocational Training and Development Institute (VTDI), Mandeville Campus
- Northern Caribbean University
